Team Builders Plus Receives Achievement Award From Drexel University

Team Builders Plus co-founders Jeff Backal and Merrick Rosenberg were honored with Drexel University's Entrepreneur Award at an Alumni Association Awards reception May 3 in Philadelphia. The award recognizes the achievements of Drexel alumni who created a new business or venture, or expanded an existing business, through the use of their Drexel education, innovation and initiative.

Backal, a Voorhees resident, and Rosenberg, of Marlton, met in their Drexel MBA program and developed their entire business plan via their courses. "The Drexel University MBA program gave us the tools to build our business," said Backal. "We are truly fortunate to receive an award for doing what we love – helping others maximize their potential so their own businesses can prosper," added Rosenberg.

Drexel University President Constantine Papadakis; Jeff Backal, CEO of Team Builders Plus, Cherry Hill; Merrick Rosenberg President of Team Builders Plus; Alumni Association Chair Maria Mascioli Charlton and Alumni Association Honors and Awards Committee Chair Jeff Hyman. On May 3, Backal and Rosenberg won Drexel's Entrepreneurs of the Year Award.
